

Sanddie Cheong

Sanddie joined Living Hope in 2009 when she answered an advertisement for help with their upcoming charity event. It was fortuitous timing as she had always been passionate about charity work.

Sanddie feels humbly uplifted by Living Hope children and their positive attitude to life despite their tough circumstances.

In turn, the youngsters warm to her friendly and open disposition.

A mother of two children herself, Sanddie appreciates the importance of education and hard work in order to achieve success in life.

She comes from an unassuming middle-class family herself and worked in many aspects of the business world after graduating in accountancy and business law from Australia. Her own circumstances instilled an appreciation for hard work and education to achieve success in life.

But it has been charity work that Sanddie has found true satisfaction and reward in life.

Her personal motto is 'a simple act of kindness can make big difference to someone's life' and has dedicated herself to tireless fundraising to help the lives of Living Hope children for the better.

They just need a chance to change their lives and Sanddie reaches out with words of encouragement.

Sanddie is currently the Director of Fund-raising work for Living Hope children.
